

The Singapore Medical Association (SMA) aims to promote awareness and develop a wider interest in issues concerning medical ethics. The SMA Ethics Award is intended to encourage tertiary students in Singapore to research and review important aspects of medical ethics.

SINGAPORE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION (SMA) ETHICS ESSAY AWARD 2000

The Award is in the form of a sum of $1000/- each and a certificate to be presented to the winners at the SMA Ethics Convention.

The Award is open to two categories:

- (i) Medical Undergraduates
- (ii) Non-Medical Undergraduates

All students studying in institutes of higher learning in Singapore (Universities/ Polytechnics) are eligible for application. The Award will be presented to the person who submits the best original unpublished essay in each category. The essay should be of single authorship.

The focus of the Essay is on 'Professionalism in Medical Practice in reference to Physician to Physician Relationship in the Singapore Context.'

The full essay of 1500 to 2000 words and a list of references must reach the Singapore Medical Association by 31 August 2000. The successful authors may be required to present an abstract of their essays at the SMA Ethics Convention at the end of 2000.

Deadline for submission: 31 August 2000
